Elephants are the largest animal on land. They use their trunks to drink water and spray it on themselves when they are hot or need a bath! They also flap their ears to keep themselves cool.

Gorillas and people have a lot in common. They're smart – and they even laugh or smile when they are happy!

Tigers are the biggest wild cat. They are really good swimmers. Their roar is so loud, it can be heard from more than a mile away – which is the length of 17 full-sized school buses lined up in a row!

Green sea turtles can hold their breath for hours at a time and swim really fast. When the babies hatch from eggs in the sand, they need to crawl into the water.
